WHO IS NIKI BUTCHER?

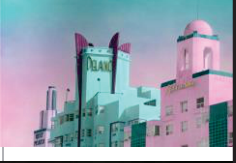

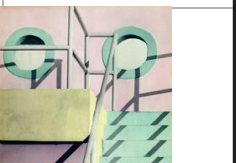

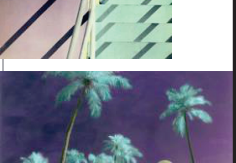

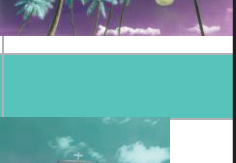

Niki Butcher is an artist whose mediums include oil paint and photographic film, but she is much more than the supplies she uses. She is a mother, loyal partner and wife, historian, documentarian, conservationist, and passionate protector of the environment. She is an engaged community activist with an overarchingly positive outlook on life. A creative spirit who loves all things Bohemian and quirky, Niki revels in the enjoyment of revealing a hidden story through her artwork. She sees the world in vivid colors and expresses herself through art and dialogue with those she meets.

Niki's BACKGROUND

Growing up in Palo Alto, California, Niki thrived and was inspired by the intellectual and culturally diverse community that formed around Stanford University. Her interest in the arts began when she was in high school, and by the age of sixteen, she had sold her first painting. She married fellow artist Clyde Butcher in 1963, and they had two children, Jackie and Ted. In the 1980s, the family moved to Florida, and the couple sold art at local art fairs. Niki was inspired by her love of vintage postcards, architecture and nature, although she often painted more commercially-viable subjects to help support the family. After the tragic death of her 17-year-old son, it was a stop at a roadside attraction, Orchid Isles, in the middle of Big Cypress National Preserve, Florida, that opened a new chapter in her life. During a solitary walk on the property, Niki began to visualize what could be. She looked beyond the tourist signs and eccentric owner to see the possibility of creating a gallery and home where the rundown orchid farm stood. In the early 1990s, Niki and Clyde built their home and gallery in the Big Cypress National Preserve, this unique place where she could capture and document the endangered ecosystems of the Everglades and the slowly vanishing funky, quirky Florida she so loved. Today, Niki has moved from hand-painting with oils to digital painting, but her artwork still embodies the inspiration she receives from the community she has built around herself.
